

Building Cathedrals: The Power of Purpose is based on a story that has been told for over 300 years that illustrates the most successful people in life and business are those of purpose. Greg Coker has traced the origin of this life-changing story to the world's most famous architect, Christopher Wren. Wren was commissioned to rebuild St. Paul's Cathedral after the fire of 1666 which devastated London. In this thought-provoking book, Coker dissects the leadership qualities of Christopher Wren and revisits the fire of 1666, examining its redemptive qualities to London and to our personal lives as well. He introduces a "Cathedral" as a powerful metaphor of personal expression of purpose, encourages us to find our "Cathedral," and to help others find theirs. The "Bricklayers" provide the foundation for a refreshing look into employee engagement, corporate culture, and the dynamics that occur in today's organizations. Included are true stories of people who are building "Cathedrals" after having experienced "personal fires," but who, like London, have emerged better and stronger.
